– LOS ANGELES WEEKLY

“A far-ranging exposé of hate politics that crosses lines of race, religion and sexual identity, this might be the next training manual on how to rescue the soul of America.”
– B. RUBY RICH

“An eye-opening and chilling portrayal of the epidemic of racial and anti-gay hatred.”
– TORONTO GLOBE & MAIL

In 1995 Ballot Measure 9 shocked movie-goers with its inside views of a divisive anti-gay election battle, and with the unprecedented violence the campaign rhetoric provoked--such that activists were given full-time police protection, and on election night wore bullet proof vests.

The chasms that divide this country are no less divisive today, and as the polarizing issue of gay marriage re-energizes the “cultural wars” of the last decade, Ballot Measure 9 resonates as strongly as ever. Its vivid illustration of both the politics of intolerance and a successful broad-based civil rights campaign remains instructive for a new generation of voters and educators.

For educators, Ballot Measure 9 is the starting point for dialogue about the democratic process, offering a valuable window to discussions about the health of the society in which we live. For civil rights workers, this account of successful grassroots organizing is an instructive model and inspirational organizing tool.

RECOMMENDED FOR HIGH SCHOOLS, UNIVERSITIES, LIBRARIES, COMMUNITY & CIVIL LIBERTIES GROUPS.

WHAT EDUCATORS SAY:

“A pivotal teaching tool.... Student comments after viewing this film have been striking for the level of critical self-reflection it inspires. They come away having learned a valuable and important history lesson, and with a heightened sense of responsibility and awareness of the subtle forms of intolerance in which they themselves have participated.”

-Professor Douglas P. St. Christian
Dep’t of Anthropology, McMaster University

“Ballot Measure 9 is a great tool for illustrating the influence of stereotypes and prejudice on behavior that threatens the civil liberties of all people. It stimulates provocative discussion and gets students thinking about issues of social justice in their own lives. I have found it to be an indispensable part of my curriculum.”

-Dr. Laurie Rudman
Dep’t of Social Psychology, Rutgers University
